

Supplementary Information

Effect of cobalt promotion on hydrotalcite-derived Ni catalyst for CO₂ methanation

Paulina Summa*^{1,2}, Katarzyna Świrk³, Ye Wang⁴, Bogdan Samojeden¹, Magnus Ronning³, Changwei Hu^{4,5}, Monika Motak¹, Patrick Da Costa²

¹AGH University of Science and Technology, Faculty of Energy and Fuels, Poland

²Institut Jean le Rond d'Alembert, Sorbonne Université, CNRS UMR 7190, 2 place de la gare de ceinture, 78210 Saint Cyr L'Ecole, France

³Department of Chemical Engineering, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU), Norway

⁴College of Chemical Engineering, Sichuan University, P. R. China

⁵Key Laboratory of Green Chemistry and Technology, Ministry of Education, College of Chemistry, Sichuan University, P. R. China

* summa@agh.edu.pl , patrick.da_costa@sorbonne-universite.fr

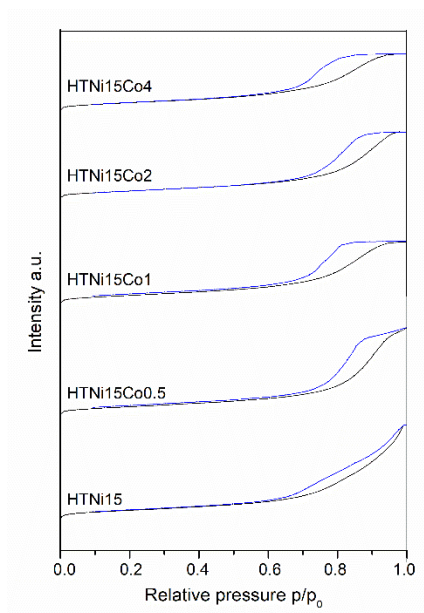

Fig. S1. Nitrogen sorption isotherms for the calcined catalysts

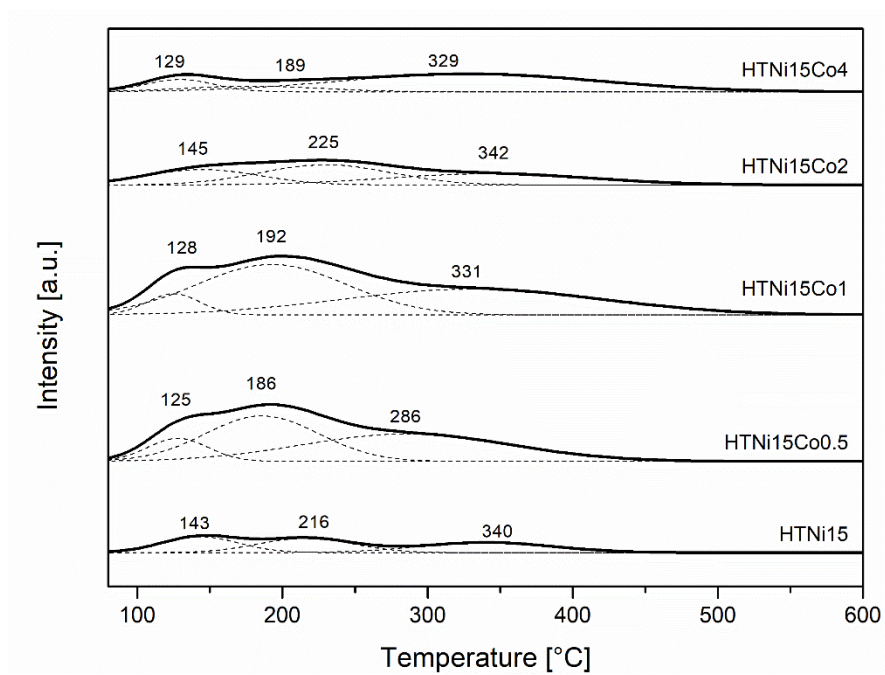

Fig. S2. CO₂-TPD profiles for the reduced hydrotalcite-derived catalysts